Louisiana And Congress

Probably not many sessions in the history of congress have been more important to Louisiana than that of the 87th congress, now in progress. Many proposed actions affect Louisiana directly and others affect this state immensely as a part of the whole United States.

For one thing, the nation will soon be able to determine whether congress will continue to operate as an independent legislative and taxing body and will guard the sacred trusts which have been imposed in it or whether it will surrender those functions still further to the executive and judicial branches.

Along with this, we will see how strong are the combined forces of the south and the conservative forces of the north. In fact, it is these forces, if any, which will save congress from deteriorating into a duplicating machine for the Kennedy adminis-

There is no likelihood that we will get any relief as far as the integration question is concerned, since the congressmen from virtually every section of the country, except the south are politically committed to integration, although these congressmen themselves generally refuse to live among Negroes, despite the fact that Washington is flooded with them.

Tidelands, military installation placements, sugar quotas, shrimp imports and oil depletion were listed by Senator Russell Long as some of the problems directly concerning Louisiana that will confront congress.

Louisiana members of congress are convinced that it will take "all the ingenuity, persuasiveness and hard work that the members of the Louisiana congressional delegation can produce" if passage of desired legislation on the all-important question of giving Louisiana ownership of the lands under the Gulf of Mexico to a distance of 10 miles from the state's coastline is to be obtained. Both Representative Willis and Senator Long have expressed the thought that "the entire delegation must work together in a united effort to agree on the best and strongest legislative proposal to be presented regarding tide lands" and to work for passage of such a bill.

Since Louisiana would gain many millions of dollars in income if such a bill were to be enacted. the senators and representatives of this state, must convince congressmen from other states, to which the benefits from the tidelands bill would not be so readily apparent, that such legislation is the only fair and equitable solution to the problem. In the long run, the bill will work to the best interests of their states, as well as the interests of ours. Of course, this is especially true of several states whose situation is virtually the same as that of Louisiana.

In the final analysis, this session of congress will see a continuing fight to determine whether the rights of the states are paramount, with the federal government taking only such action as is necessary to hold them together as a nation, or whether the federal government becomes the owner of things that belong to the state and becomes a ruler over every phase of business, industrial and social life in this country.

Tremendous influence wielded by Senator Barry Goldwater, the Republican conservative from Arizona, and the organization of more than 100 conservative clubs on the college campuses of this country, where so-called "liberalism" has run rampant for a good many years, are indications that at heart many people are turning to conservative views for the reason that they do not want to surrender our country to socialism and rule by a federal bureaucracy.

A determined fight by our members of congress for the rights of the individual states was never more needed nor desired than now.

Africa Next Red Target

Since 1620 when the first slave ship landed in the American colonies, there has been little if any liaison between African and U.S. Negroes. This picture may change

Even now, the objectives take a different form. Africa is alive with revolt and turmoil as the Negro there strives for supremacy over the white European who brought a measure of civilization to him.

In the United States, Negro pressure groups strive for an elusive "equality" of rights and opportunities without the strings of responsibility attached.

But the underdeveloped African nations-for the most part, the newly independent countries which have received a good measure of U.S. aid—are now pleading with Negroes the world over to join the "black supremacy" movement.

The breakup of the French and British colonial systems after World War II enabled the movement to begin. The new republics forming in the wake of the European withdrawals follow a trend. They first become corrupt dictatorships which soon lose their wealth and authority to commu-

A good example is the new nation of Ghana. At first, the country was praised as one which the British had made to live by democratic principles. It is a disturbing fact that an East German airline has run a leg into French West Africa, a line which can tie all of Central and South Africa to the "iron Curtain" capitals of Europe.

In a book entitled "The Reluctant African," published by Harper and Brothers, New York, a New York Negro reporter, Louis Lomax, sizes up the European dilemma in Africa.

Written following a trip to the so-called "Dark Continent," the book indicates native objectives are to allow Europeans to remain only as "squatters," and that Christianity is on the decline.

Perhaps the most alarming statement in the book is the deadline set by the African revolutionists-1963-the same date noted in the Democratic Platform as the target for 100 per cent integration of all United States

Though the book does not point it up, this date shows the African and American Negro pressure groups are working in cooperation with one another.

It is significant that the Negro himself was looked upon as a "white apologist" by the leaders of the African revolutionary cli-

The handwriting on the wall is plain to see for the future of Africa. Independence swings to corrupt neutralism which makes a ripe target for communism.

This has already happened in Ghana, Liberia and Egypt. The Congo is falling apart and Russia and Red China are picking up the pieces. Morocco and Algeria are on the "brink" and the British territories in East and South Africa are preparing to assert their "black supremacy."

Eisenhower Fortunate Man

Throughout His Eight-Year Presidency People Had Large Measure Of Confidence In His Moral Qualities

President Eisenhower has been, in many ways, a fortunate man. Throughout his Presidency, the people had a large measure of confidence in his moral qualities. He was, however, not given a Congress of his own party, not since the 83rd Congress. His authority within his own party was never challenged, yet rarely exerted. His only real quarrel was over Senator Joseph McCarthy whom he managed to reduce from a leading national figure to a disciplined senator who felt himself betrayed by his party and even his friends and died of it.

The principal positive achievement of the Eisenhower administration was that he managed to maintain the peace. But the price has been so enormous that one might almost say that his was a peace at any price. It was during his eight years that Soviet Russia achieved victory after victory in many fields and the United States took insult after insult in many areas. Nevertheless, this did not impair Eisenhower's personal popularity; in fact, every insult hurled at him in South America where Vice Presidnet Nixon was abused, in Tokyo where Red China provoked demonstrations against the President, at the Paris summit conference where Eisenhower was treated with malicious shamelessness, in the United Nations where Khrushchev hurled boorish imprecations at him-all these and more won him an increasing measure of sympathy within the United States.

Outside the United States, however, American prestige suffered because many nations believed that the United States accepted the insults of Castro and the proddings of Nehru, Tito and Nasser

Politics Often Results In Man's Pride Being Badly Torn

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Politics is not really a blood sport, but often you see a man's pride torn to bits, and his feelings painfully wounded. They say it killed Joe McCarthy, and today there's another Joe - Senator Clark of Pennsylvania - who suffered a defeat which, at least on the day of this interview, left him trembling, gaunt and bitter from overwork, disappointment and punish-

McCarthy and Clark hail from opposite sides of the social and political railroad tracks, so that if you have sympathy for only one type or the other - read no further here. My thesis is that the ahanty Irish and the Chestnut Hill patrician both have the same salt in their tears, and that the man who sees Reds under every bed can be just as sincere as the man with a Don Quixote complex to overthrow the Citadel.

The Citadel, or the United States Senate, stands there still. although Joe Clark and others have made their annual effort to breach its sacred walls. Clark calls it an effort to "democratize" the famous upper chamber with its tried, true and trustworthy rituals and saleguards. He set out with a five - point program, and at first had the deceitful encouragement of premature success. He was able to loosen up the procedure of the Democratic policy and steering committees, and to increase the size of two Senate Standing Commit-

But the illusions of triumph only set him up for the crushers that followed. He got nowhere trying to prevent the seniority system. (and the celebrated "club spirit" of the Senate) from retaining Senator Harry Byrd as Chairman of the Finance Committee and Senator James Eastland as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

He failed in his major democratization effort to change Rule 22 so that a numerical majority could close off debate. Clark fears that, without these reforms, the Kennedy program is doomed. "The rules," he says in a formal statement, "make it impossible . to pass meaningful legisla-on to protect voting rights, speed school integration and pro-mote job opportunities."

You may rightly presume that Joe Clark takes himself seriously, even mystically. He sees America as a maiden in distress, lashed to the rock, violated by so-cial injustices and economic eut-rages. Joe Clark (more like the other Joe than he would like to admit) apparently feels himself save ber.

From what? And for what? In seeking the answers before talking with the Senator, I was told that they lie in a big historical phase through which the nation is passing. The "Joe Clark" of the next decade, I was told, would not stop at rejiggering the Senate rules. He would try to do what is regarded in Liberal circles as a must - abolish the States and divide the country up into districts. When I demurred that something of the sort once happened to France, the answer was that the French are the most civilized and accomplished race in Europe! So, what's wrong with France? Well, since the Revolution France has had two Napoleonic empires. three monarchial reigns, five republics, three dreadful military defeats at home, several others abroad, the Nazi occupation and now the Gaullist paternalism. Even for "culture" this is a high price. It is not a record to be envied by Americans. Senator Clark believes, if I understand him, that the States as political entities ought to go. This would mean the end of the United States of America as a republic, and its remodeling as a con-glomerate democracy where ev-ery citizen's vote has equal weight. The Senator has no such plan which, in any event, he said, would be impossible to implement under the Constitution.

Most Americans, I judge, would thank their God for that, and would be content for the Citadel to stand for a long time as the protector of the Constitution,
But nobody since McCarthy has been so embettled with his colleagues as Joe Clark - nor so sincerely convinced that he is right and almost everybody else dead wrong.

Physician Thinks He May Be Beneficial In Treating Bursitis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am at the end of my rope — almost (set like I'd really like to be!

I am a man of 46 who has suffered from bursitis for the last few months. No sleep. No work. No sun at all in living.

When will it end? My doctor new calls it a chronic bursitis. He says operation isn't indicated in my case. We've tried everything else: hydrocortisone injections, X-ray treatments and all kinds of heat treatments and med-

In desperation I ask you, Dr. Steincrohn, if there isn't something else you can suggest. Even if it only gives me one chance in a hundred to feel better, I'll try it. — Mr.·F., N.J.

I have a suggestion for you, but

I must warn you not to take ac-

I have had no personal experience with its use. but I have been reading an interesting report recently. I hope it brings you the relief you seek. During a recent meeting of the International Conference of Ultrasonics, a report indicated that a aeries of 1500 cases of bursitis improved with ultrasound treatment. And according to Dr. John H. Aldes, director of rehabilitation, Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles, even patients who had chronic bursitis for at least a year received some relief. Perhaps if you look into it, this may be the answer to your painful problem, Mr. F. Your doctor will refer you to some expert in physical therapy who has had experience with this method. For those readers who suffer from esteoarthritis, another interesting and hopeful observation came out of this meeting. Dr. W. Gordon Rich of Hobart, Tas-mania, pointed out that 90 per cent of 119 patients with ostsoarthritis of the spine showed improvement after ultrasonic sound therapy. Some had had sciatic pains for as long as 5 years; others had low back pain and weakness of the leg and foot muscles. But they, too, improved. As I indicated earlier, I don't want to raise any false hopes. I bring this method to your attention as another treatment to consider when all else have failed. In the future, perhaps - if and when it has proved itself - ultra sound may be used much earlier in the treatment of cases of bursitis and arthritis.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Anything new in the treatment of psoriasis? -Miss R., Ohio.

Answer: According to Dr. Henry M. Lewis of the University of Colorado School of Medicine, there have been some favorable results with the use of the "grenz ray." This ray lies between ultraviolet and X-rays in the electromagnetic spectrum. Why not ask your dermatologist?

Confidential to Mrs. D., California: By all means, don't!

Report to Mr. K., New York: By all means, do!

For Mrs. L., Miami: I can understand why you "love living in Florida" and believe the even temperature has prolonged your life. Many cardiac patients improve in this climate. As I have mentioned before, weather in southern Florida may occasionally become difficult, "but it doesn't stay mad long."

Kennedy Deficit

Apparently No One Hopes For Balanced Budget In Fiscal Year

Quite a new thing has featured the transitory period from the Eisenhower Administration to the Kennedy Administration. This innovation has been the Kennedy 'task force' recommendations which have been rolling off at assembly line regularity, the rate being about one a day. There are twenty-one of them in all. One note has run through all the recommendations of the liberal citizens' committees which were appointed by the Presidentelect - large new expenditures and large accretions of the nower of Federal Government. If all these recommendations were adopted they would lavishly implement all the promises of the 1960 Democratic National Convention's platform and add billions upon billions to the first budget of the new Administration.

The last Budget of the Eisenhower Administration was sent to Congress Monday, and the White House termed it balanced and "non - political." But it is too much to hope that there will be a balanced budget in the next fiscal year. In fact Secretary of the Treasury-designate Douglas Dillon in his confirmation hearing appearance before the Senate Finance Committee said: "Everything I have been told leads me to believe there will be a deficit in the fiscal year.

The Kennedy method has been to accept the recommendations, thank the task forces and with-hold indorsement. They will not all be adopted by the Kennedy Administration. Perhaps even they represent merely a statement of hope rather than an expectation of realization by the task forces themselves. And if the Kennedy Administration accepted them there is no certainty that Congress would.

Indeed Kennedy has been receiving some advice to forget them from some very unexpected sources. One of these sources is Senator William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat, who came to the Senate in the very front ranks of the spendocracy.

Senator Kennedy carried the

Wisconsin Democratic primary, but Vice President Nixon defeated him handily in the Badger State in November, yet this could not have been of immediate personal concern to Proxmire who will not have to face the voters again until 1964. But the fact that Proxmire would advise the President to forget the task committees' proposal was sensational. He began by pointing out that many have said the President-elect desired a balanced budget and fiscal responsibility but the task reports point the other way. He assumed Proxmire said, "that at least one reason these reports have been made public was to use their pub-lication as trial balloons, and get Congressional reaction." His ewn Congressional reaction." His own position Proxmire said was for "preventing excessive Government spending and big Federal deficits from becoming a source of inflationary pressures, driving up prices throughout the country and increasing the already heavy burden of our national debt."

"The coming administration is going to have trouble winning support for spending for vital and necessary projects," the Wisconsin Sensior told the Sensio. "It should not also take on the problems of persuading Congress to spend for spending's sake; that is, to deliberately unbalance the man with a Don Quixote complex to overthrow the Citadel. The Citadel, or the United States Senate, stands there still, although Joe Clark and others have made their annual effort to breach its sacred walls. Clark calls it an effort to "democratize" the famous upper chamber with its tried, true and trustworthy rituals and safeguards. He set out with a five - point program, and at first had the deceitful encouragement of premature success. He was able to loosen up the procedure of the Democratic policy and steering com-mittees, and to increase the size

(and the celebrated "club spirit" of the Senate) from retaining Senator Harry Byrd as Chairman of the Finance Committee and Senator James Eastland as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

He failed in his major democratization effort to change Rule 22 so that a numerical majority could close off debate. Clark fears that, without these reforms, the Kennedy program is doomed. "The rules," he says in a formal statement, "make it impossible to pass meaningful legislation to protect voting rights, speed school integration and promote job opportunities." You may rightly presume that Joe Clark takes himself serious even mystically. He sees America as a maiden in distress, lashed to the rock, violated by social injustices and economic outrages. Joe Clark (more like the other Joe than he would like to admit) apparently feels himself annointed and commissioned to

From what? And for what? In tics is not really a blood sport, seeking the answers before talking with the Senator, I was told that they lie in a big historical phase through which the nation is passing. The "Joe Clark" of the next decade, I was told, would not stop at rejiggering the Senate rules. He would try to do what is regarded in Liberal circles as a must - abolish the States and divide the country up into districts. When I demurred that something of the sort once happened to France, the answer was that the French are the most civilized and accomplished race in Europe! So, what's wrong with France? Well, since the Revolution France has had two Napoleonic empires, three monarchial reigns, five republics, three dreadful military defeats at home, several others abroad, the Nazi occupation and now the Gaullist paternalism. Even for "culture" this is a high price. It is not a record to be envied by Americans. Senator Clark believes, if I understand him, that the States as political entities ought to go. This would mean the end of the United States of America as a republic, and its remodeling as a conglomerate democracy where every citizen's vote has equal weight. The Senator has no such plan which, in any event, he said, would be impossible to implement under the Constitution. Most Americans, I judge, would thank their God for that, and would be content for the Citadel to stand for a long time as the protector of the Constitution. But nobody since McCarthy has been so embattled with his colleagues as Joe Clark - nor so sincerely convinced that he is right and almost everybody else dead wrong.

Physician Thinks He May Be Beneficial In Treating Bursitis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am at the end of my rope - almost feel like I'd really like to be! I am a man of 46 who has suffered from bursitis for the last few months. No sleep. No work. No fun at all in living. When will it end? My doctor now calls it a chronic bursitis. He says operation isn't indicated in my case. We've tried everything else: hydrocortisone injections, X-ray treatments and all kinds of heat treatments and med-In desperation I ask you, Dr. Steincrohn, if there isn't something else you can suggest. Even if it only gives me one chance in

tion unless you have your doctor's complete approval. I refer to the consideration of "ultrasound therapy." I have had no personal experience with its use, but I have been reading an interesting report recently. I hope it brings you the relief you seek. During a recent meeting of the International Conference of Ultrasonics, a report indicated that a series of 1500 cases of bursitis improved with ultrasound treatment. And according to Dr. John H. Aldes, director of rehabilitation, Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles, even patients who had chronic bursitis for at least a year received some relief.

Perhaps if you look into it, this may be the answer to your painful problem, Mr. F. Your doctor physical therapy who has had experience with this method.

For those readers who suffer from osteoarthritis, another interesting and hopeful observation came out of this meeting. Dr. W. Gordon Rich of Hobart, Tasmania, pointed out that 90 per cent of 119 patients with osteoarthritis of the spine showed improvement after ultrasonic sound therapy. Some had had sciatic pains for as long as 5 years; others had low back pain and weakness of the leg and foot muscles. But they, too, improved.

As I indicated earlier, I don't want to raise any false hopes. I bring this method to your attention as another treatment to consider when all else have failed. In the future, perhaps - if and when it has proved itself - ultra sound may be used much earlier in the treatment of cases of bursitis and arthritis.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Anything new in the treatment of psoriasis? -Miss R., Ohio.

Answer: According to Dr. Henry M. Lewis of the University of Colorado School of Medicine, there have been some favorable results with the use of the "grenz ray." This ray lies between ultraviolet and X-rays in the electromagnetic spectrum. Why not ask your dermatologist?

Kennedy Deficit

Apparently No One Hopes For Balanced Budget In Fiscal Year

Quite a new thing has featured the transitory period from the Eisenhower Administration to the Kennedy Administration. This innovation has been the Kennedy "task force" recommendations which have been rolling off at assembly line regularity, the rate being about one a day. There are twenty-one of them in all.

One note has run through all the recommendations of the liberal citizens' committees which were appointed by the Presidentand large accretions of the power of Federal Government. If all recommendations adopted they would lavishly implement all the promises of the 1960 Democratic National Convention's platform and add billions upon billions to the first budget of the new Administration. The last Budget of the Eisenhower Administration was sent to Congress Monday, and the White House termed it balanced and "non - political." But it is too much to hope that there will be a balanced budget in the next fiscal year. In fact Secretary of the Treasury-designate Douglas Dillon in his confirmation hearing appearance before the Senate Finance Committee said: thing I have been told leads me to believe there will be a deficit in the fiscal year.

The Kennedy method has been to accept the recommendations, thank the task forces and with hold indorsement. They will not all be adopted by the Kennedy Administration. Perhaps even they represent merely a statement of hope rather than an expectation of realization by the task forces themselves. And if the Kennedy Administration accepted them there is no certainty that Congress would.

Indeed Kennedy has been receiving some advice to forget them from some very unexpect-ed sources. One of these sources Senator William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat, who came to the Senate in the very front ranks of the spendocracy. Senator Kennedy carried the Wisconsin Democratic primary, but Vice President Nixon defeated him handily in the Badger State in November, yet this could not have been of immediate personal concern to Proxmire who will not have to face the voters again until 1964.

But the fact that Proxmire would advise the President to forget the task committees' propos al was sensational. He began by pointing out that many have said the President-elect desired a balanced budget and fiscal responsibility but the task reports point the other way. He assumed Proxmire said, "that at least one reason these reports have been made public was to use their publication as trial balloons, and get Congressional reaction." His own position Proxmire said was for preventing excessive Government spending and big Federal deficits from becoming a source of inflationary pressures, driving up prices throughout the country and increasing the already heavy burden of our national debt."

"The coming administration is going to have trouble winning support for spending for vital and necessary projects," the Wisconsin Senator told the Senate. "It should not also take on the problems of persuading Congress to spend for spending's sake; that is, to deliberately unbalance the Budget."

Until all the task force reports are in it will be impossible to tell the number of billions of dollars they will add up to.

An anti-recession task force, headed by Professor Paul Samuelson of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, proposed some $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 for anti - recession spending, an education group urged Federal outlays for schools and colleges at the rate of about $2,500,000,000 a year for four years, a housing group recommended a new multibillion dollar Federal housing

A task force on foreign aid thought this country ought to immediately raise its economic help - developed nations to $5,000,000,000 a year. There was the Douglas report for distressed areas in this country.

The pressure groups will attempt to dove-tail them all into a national program. Pressure groups win when they can outshout the rest of the citizenry.

Whether we are going to have fiscal responsibility or pour gasoine on the fires of inflation will be the decision of the new Ad ministration and the Congress.

Daily Meditation

This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well - pleased .--Saint Matthew 3:17.

God was pleased with Christ, His obedient Son, because He early aligned Himself with the forces of righteousness, as expounded by John the Baptist. He will also be pleased with all those who respond to His invitation into a new, better and more meaningful life. The Gospel of Christ could be the "oil of gladness" needed for lubricating a world that grinds and creaks in sin and jealousy and suspicion - if we would but exemplify the Christ and accept His teachings and salvation.

God, our Father, forgive our slothfulness and delay in making Thy world truly Christlike in dealings between individuals and nations. In Christ's name we pray. Amen

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
